{NB: oh dear; started writing this Thursday night, so that's what "today" indicates; had decided to do a short one and leave out or postpone some items but alas, didn't result in an earlier time to go to sleep :-}

As usual slipping behind -- three interesting mtgs yesterday (CEC; Nbrhd Char WG; WVHS event at the Library), and a great HAC mtg today -- more on these later, however wanted to update you on the B-Line esp since Ccl has said more info will be released Friday. As I've said, as a recipient of mixed information, I'm eagerly seeking more facts.

Was told the Mayors' Ccl voted in favour some months ago so I have sent email to Mike Smith asking. A few days ago when chatting with Craig he also said he was undecided.

Will send you information as I get it.

Many of you have received updates from Nigel Malkin, assiduously trying to document what's going on and what changes the B-Line will mean for WV.

Am trying to find the email with the list of the numbers they counted on Tuesday. In any case this is the end of a notice sent:

TransLink has told the District of West Vancouver it is the B-Line or nothing and are threatening to withhold YOUR TAX DOLLARS.

Regards, Nigel Malkin.

Asked our CAO for some info and Nina kindly sent this Thursday evening, so herewith fyi -- apologies, hv just put the main points b/c oodles of info expected Friday (my bolding):

... We are still confirming data and determining the consultation plan, dates, etc. More to come....

The information below is what will be going out to the community. We are not asking yes or no, we want to hear what the community has to say after they have seen the information.

... West Vancouver Council received more information from TransLink on Monday, January 7, and has determined to proceed with further public information sessions and consultation.

Staff are confirming data now and will be able to share the presentation, alternatives considered, and back-up information with the community on Friday, January 11.

What form will the consultation take?

The District will present the proposed plan and all the options that have been considered, online, at public meetings and in displays.

After you've heard about the project details, Council would like to hear if you have any specific concerns related to the proposed B-Line project.

When will Council discuss the B-Line at a Council meeting?

The results of the consultation will be presented to Council in March for their consideration.

The B-Line is not on the Council agenda for January 14, nor is it planned to be until the consultation is complete.

BTW, work on the B-Line for the two NV municipalities will begin this year. TransLink is waiting to hear from WV. FWIW, hoping to find out if it will still be just a yes/no question for us as well as whether or not TransLink will consider any alternatives WV might propose and if funding will be affected (plus, then, how much).

SLOW DOWN IN SCHOOL ZONES

Jan 7, 2019 Students return to school today and that means traffic will increase all around our community.

Whole notice: <https://westvancouver.ca/news/slow-down-school-zones-0>

Just sending on the warning:

Don't be that driver Set a good example for kids. Respect crosswalks, stop signs and 30 km/hr speed limits and don't block lanes of traffic, make U-turns, double-park or pass cars in a crosswalk. These impatient actions put our students at risk.

We invited West Vancouver students to submit short videos of their own creation for the student video contest on safe and active transportation.
